CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE BULLETIN

22 March 1966

*Vietnam: (Information as of 4:30 AM EST)

[Political Developments in South Vietnam: Buddhist leaders may be planning to renew their protest activities soon, although public reflections of political unrest remained minor yesterday.]

25X1

[A Buddhist communiqué issued in Saigon expressed "extreme surprise" over Premier Ky's recent public remarks which implied that the Buddhists were "scheming to betray and sell out the nation."]

[] Deputy Premier Co yesterday directed that General Thi be ordered back to Saigon immediately. General Co reportedly fears renewed trouble in central Vietnam as a result of Tri Quang's presence there. General Thi was last reported in Hue, and there is no information available concerning his response to yesterday's order.]

The Military Situation in South Vietnam: A Viet Cong force estimated to number two platoons attacked Cam Ly airport outside Da Lat in Tuyen Duc Province early today. A Saigon spokesman has said government casualties were slight, while two Viet Cong were killed, two were captured, and three others--presumably collaborators--were seized.

Early Monday, an estimated two companies of Viet Cong attacked elements of a South Vietnamese battalion in Binh Tuy Province. With tactical air support, government defenders killed 67 of the attackers while sustaining losses of 12 killed, 23 wounded, and two missing. A South Vietnamese ranger battalion reinforced government troops in the area, but no further contact has been reported.

Elsewhere yesterday, 21 B-52 Stratofortresses bombed two enemy targets in the Viet Cong "War Zone D" stronghold some 30 miles northeast of Saigon. There were no plans for ground forces to exploit either of the target areas.

On 20 March, US Marines conducting Operation OREGON in Thua Thien Province battled three companies of Viet Cong for about seven hours. US casualties were ten killed and 42 wounded; Viet Cong losses totaled 48 killed.

NOTES

Colombia: Results of the congressional elections, although coming in very slowly, seem to confirm predictions of a close race. Early returns give the National Transformation Front (FTN) about 55 percent of the popular vote and show the National Popular Alliance (ANP) to be the strongest force in the opposition. If these trends continue, the FTN will probably retain control of the executive branch of the government following the presidential election in May, but the ANP will be able to block future legislation.
